The Transitions to Community Living Initiative (TCL) gives more than 3,000 North Carolina people the chance to move into an apartment community, if they wish. TCL means long-term housing and fewer hospital stays.

Sandhills Center

- Makes sure that services and supports are in place for self-supported living.
- Works to make sure you are safe during and after the move with a personal wellness and crisis plan.
- We want you to succeed.

Transitions to Community Living Initiative

North Carolinians with mental health support needs have had limited choice of where they got their services.

TCL is changing that.

What is Transitions to Community Living?

For people with serious mental illness, it means:

• Your choice is valued and supported.
• Services are in the most flexible setting that is right for each person.
• Services are recovery oriented.
• Housing that helps people with disabilities connect with others.
• Housing that does not limit a person’s social activities with the people of their choice.

“When people don’t see recovery as part of their lives, they need to be surrounded with possibilities of recovery.” - Substance Abuse and Mental Health Association (SAMSA)

Services and supports provided by the Transitions to Community Living plan:

• Transition planning
• Housing slots with rental and transition support
• Assertive Community Treatment Team Services
• Supported Employment Services
• Crisis resources
